Policy Statement

Thomson Reuters is committed to conducting its business operations and activities in a manner that prevents injury and ill-health for employees, customers, visitors, and contractors, protects the environment, conserves natural resources, and positions us as a responsible neighbor in communities where we operate.

Key Principles

As a company, Thomson Reuters is committed to:

- Developing, implementing, and continually improving policies, procedures, and guidelines to ensure compliance with applicable regulations and support our values, commitments, and expectations.
- Minimizing adverse impacts that our operations have on the natural environment and promoting sustainable operating principles to achieve EHS excellence and contribute to the company's sustainability commitments.
- Protecting the safety and health of all those associated with our operations, inclusive of hybrid working environments, by identifying and minimizing hazards that can lead to incidents, injuries, and illnesses.
- Providing EHS training, instruction, information, and effective communication to all TR staff and those performing work at our locations relevant to their role and responsibilities
- Providing suitable and structured management systems to facilitate execution of EHS requirements.
- Monitoring, collecting and analyzing data related to our environmental impact and health and safety conditions and using the data to establish environmental, health and safety performance metrics, objectives and targets.
- Developing management processes and solutions that mitigate risks, protect our people and environment, and demonstrate value to our customers and stakeholders.
- Communicating our policies and performance with interested parties
- Ensuring all employees and vendor partners are empowered to intervene should they see unsafe or environmentally unsound conditions.

This policy will be reviewed and updated on at least an annual basis. Regular updates regarding activities supporting this policy, its implementation, and performance against established metrics are provided to Senior Leadership.
